Schools need of money in hands of voters

The future of Lee County Schools is going to be in the hands of voters this November. On the fall ballot will be the question of whether or not the schools should be allowed to raise an additional nickel on the property tax bills in the county. It affects automobiles also, but primarily is an increase of five and a half cents per every $100 of assessed value on property.

According to information the schools obtained from the Property Valuation Administrator, the average assessed value of Lee County property is $41,350. The additional .055 cents would add $22.74 a year to the tax bill. For property assessed at $100,000, the tax would be $55.

In meetings, the school board has said that it needs the money so it can increase its bonding ability. An increased bonding ability would allow the schools to address renovation and construction needs.

According to the 2013-2015 Lee County School District Facilities Plan, the most important need is $60,000 for renovation to the vocational school plus repaving the parking lots.

Next is $4.8 million in renovation for the high school. It includes new heating and air conditioning, doors, windows, gutters and downspouts, electrical, plumbing and fire protection systems, lights, ADA accessibility to staff restrooms and to water fountains, internal fiber wiring, repaving all parking lots and interior finishes.

Third most important is $2.7 million in renovations for the middle school. The needs are identical to those of the high school, and include an expansion of the library.

Then there is the expansion and renovation of Southside Elementary. There are two phases planned, with the first costing approximately $3 million.

The school district has the bonding potential now to pay for that.

Phase 2 is expected to cost around $6 million, and there is no bonding potential for it.

According to Superintendent Dr. James Evans, Jr., if the nickel tax is not approved the renovations and the second phase for Southside will all be delayed, and can only be done in small pieces over a longer period of time. For the second phase of Southside, that means that the expansion of the cafeteria and gymnasium would have to wait.

As students move from the Beat-tyville Elementary to Southside the pressures on those two entities, the cafeteria and gym will show. The cafeteria could be in operation full time so that as one meal ends the next immediately begins.

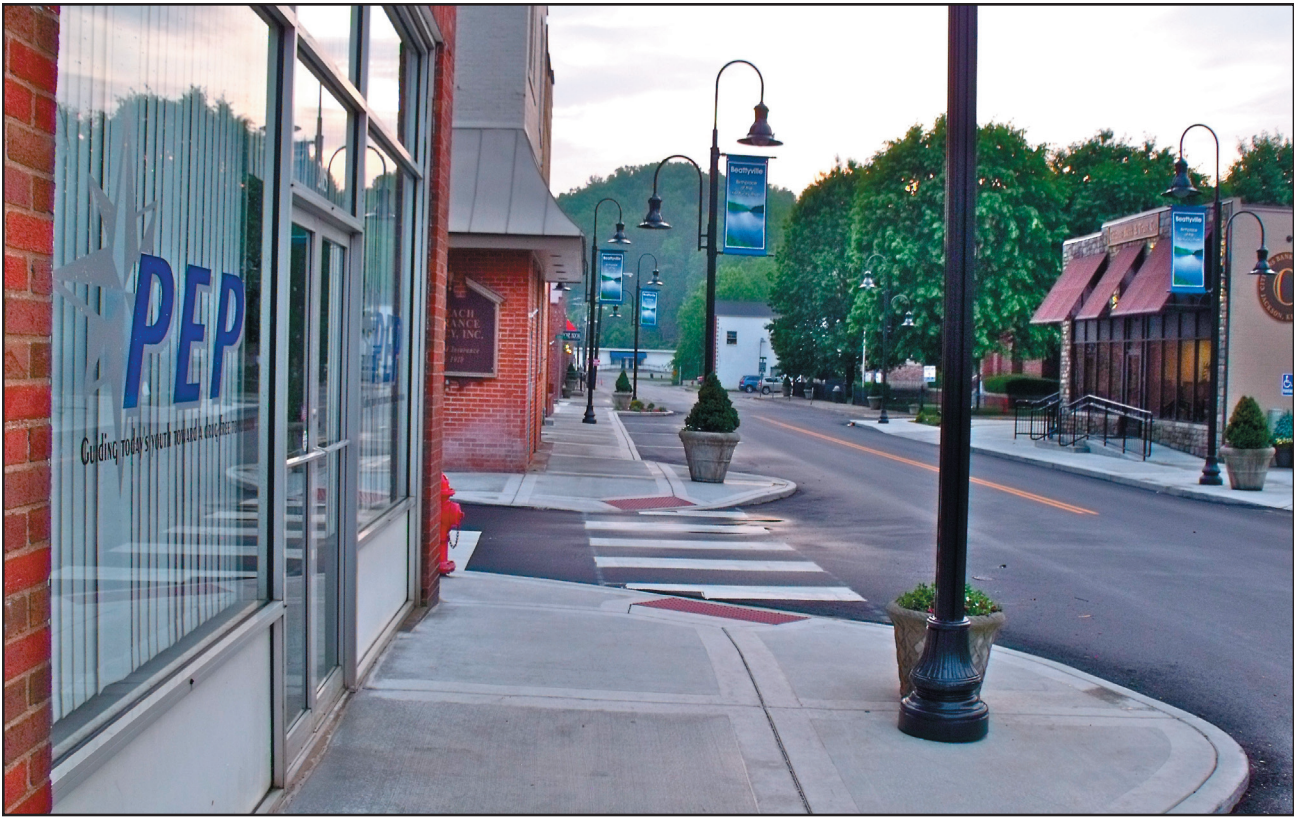

That crunch comes about, as all in the community know, because of the closing of Beattyville Elementary.

The state education department will not allow Lee County to go into debt (sale of bonds) to renovate the old building, but it will allow the expansion of Southside.

The longer the delay in moving all students into Southside leaves students in a building that has some serious issues.

A recent Health Department inspection of Beattyville Elementary kitchen cited, "Floor needs repair throughout establishment, especially at floor drains & near walk-ins." With no money available for repairs, and a declining enrollment, the school board decided to go ahead with the move to just one

City gets Streetscape funding

Governor Steve Beshear announced Monday that Beattyville is to receive $663,863 in federal funding so it can complete Phase 3, the final phase, of its Streetscape Project.

This phase begins at Rose Bros., and the Courthouse and continues on to the railroad underpass. Like the other two phases, the project will include new sidewalks, curbing, street lighting and improved storm drainage.

The funding is through the federal Transportation Alternatives Program (TAP). TAP enables local governments to recoup as much as 80 percent of the cost of a project. The City of Beattyville will put $165,966 of its local funding toward the cost of the project.

Some of that will have to be actual money, but some also will come in the form of in-kind work.

Lee one of hardest places to live

Lee County is one of six Kentucky counties to be considered one of the hardest places to live in the United States.

Of the 10 counties in the country to make the New York Times list, Lee is included with Clay County (the most difficult in the country), Jackson County, Leslie County, Breathitt County and Magoffin County.

The other four counties are: Humphreys County, Mississippi; East Carroll Parish, Louisiana; Jefferson County, Georgia; and, Lee County, Arkansas.

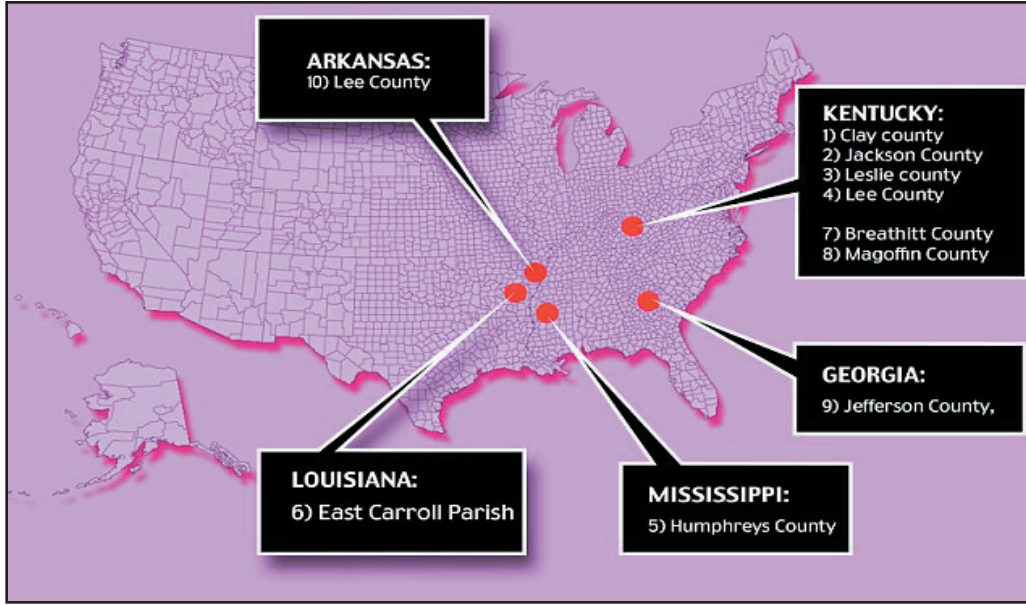

The Upshot section of the Times used six factors to determine the difficulty of places to live. Those factors are: college education, household income, joblessness, disability rates, life expectancy and obesity.

Census figures show that Lee County has 5.5 percent of its population who have a college degree, compared with 21 percent for the state.

The county's median household income is $22,789. The state median is $42,610.

Lee County has 36.9 percent of its population living below the poverty level. The state average is 18.6 percent.

According to Kentuckyhealthfacts.org, 38 percent of Lee County adults say they have less than good health. The state average is 23 percent.

Health Board to meet

The Lee County Local Board of Health will conduct a meeting on Wednesday, July 9, at noon. The meeting, which is open to the public, will be at the Health Department.

July 4th closures

The Lee County Circuit Clerk's Office will be closed Friday, July 4, and Saturday, July 5, in observance of the holiday weekend. The office will resume normal operation on Monday, July 7.

As a reminder, the office is open the first Saturday of each month from 8:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m.

Other offices in the courthouse will also be closed Friday.

Banks are also to be closed.

There will be celebrations at Happy Top on July 4, including honoring those veterans who served in Vietnam.

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

By State Representative Toby Herald

Every Day Should Be a Celebration of Our Independence, Living in a Free Nation

We are only a few days away from marking the 238th anniversary of our Declaration of Independence, when a young nation stood up against the oppression of the British Monarchy and sought to create a country ‘for the people, and by the people.’

While July 4th is a time for us to reflect on the formation of the United States and the ups and downs of remaining the one true free nation in the world, we must sometimes wonder if the meaning of the day gets lost in cookouts and fireworks.

Since that day when our forefathers gathered together to sign the declaration and lay the foundation upon which our country was built, we have fought to expand the principals of freedom to those seeking a better way of life, both inside and outside our country.

Inside our own borders we fought an internal battle for the idea that all men should be free. Kentucky native and one of our greatest Presidents, Abraham Lincoln put that idea into action with the approval of the Emancipation Proclamation in 1862, which was the first step toward eliminating slavery and culminated 100 years later with the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. On July 2nd our nation will celebrate the 50 year anniversary of the signing of this historic legislation.

Outside our borders the United States has joined other nations in combating those who will persecute and murder innocent people as part of their own agenda. From the farm fields of France, to the beaches of Iwo Jima, and the mountains of Afghanistan our sons and daughters have fought and died to preserve the freedoms we so often take for granted and opening the doors of freedom to others around the globe.

What we must always keep in mind, not just on the 4th of July but every day is the blood, sweat and tears our nation has shed as we grow and struggle with our own ideas of freedom. It is something we must never take for granted as our great nation remains a beacon of hope for others around the world who wants to live in a land ‘for the people, and by the people.’

I welcome your comments and concerns on any issues throughout the year impacting our Commonwealth. I can be reached through the toll-free message line in Frankfort at 1-800-372-7181, or you can contact me via e-mail at toby.herald@lrc.ky.gov. You can keep track of committee meetings and potential legislation through the Kentucky Legislature Home Page at www.lrc.ky.gov.

Probation and Parole gets new director

The Probation & Parole District that serves Lee, Owsley Powell, Wolfe, Estill Breathitt and other area counties has a new supervisor.

According to the Kentucky Department of Corrections, Tim Horn has been appointed to the position effective July 1.

Horn began his career with the Department of Corrections in 2004 as a probation and parole officer in Madison County. During his tenure as an officer he performed numerous duties including supervising a regular caseload, pre-sentence investigation preparation and serving as a member of the 25th Judicial Circuit Drug Court Team. He has also served as a firearms instructor and security threat group coordinator since 2009.

Horn’s office is in Mt. Sterling.

Lee County Public Library Summer Reading Program-Fizz, Boom, READ

Submitted by Allen Booth

On June 26, 2014, the youth and adults participating in the Lee County Public Library Reading Program were entertained and instructed by Preacher Bill Holeman and his long-time friends, Homer and Henry.

Even before Homer and Henry were uncased,

Preacher Bill produced a rope that was one gigantic knot! At that, he stated that even though the rope reflected the desperate twists and turns of your life, God can untangle that knot. With a slight spin, Preacher Bill revealed a perfectly straight rope!

When Henry and Homer were presented to the audience, it was obvious that they had suffered a major disagreement over something.

One was sporting a black eye! After much heated discussion amongst themselves and Preacher Bill, one admitted that he was at fault and he was ready the make things right again.

His brother quickly accepted his apology. The point that Preacher Bill was making to the youth and their parents, is that if your refuse to forgive someone, you will not be forgiven yourself!

These special programs will continue through July 10. Even Ronald McDonald will make an appearance on the last morning! Don’t let your children and grandchildren miss out on this great opportunity!

Eye to Eye

RETINAL VASCULAR OCCLUSION

Sudden loss of vision that typically occurs in one eye without any experience of pain may be due to retinal vascular occlusion. This interruption of blood flow to or from the retina may be due to a clot or blockage in the main vein or artery or any of their various branches. A blockage in the retinal vein or artery can cause blood or other fluids to build up and impede the retina’s ability to filter light properly, prompting sudden vision loss to occur. The severity of the vision loss can vary in accordance with where the blockage occurs. Thus, it is very important that the ophthalmologist perform a comprehensive eye examination at the first sign of sudden vision loss.

Retinal vascular occlusion is a potentially serious condition, especially if hardening of the arteries already exists. If you think you may be suffering from an eye disease, it is important to visit an experienced ophthalmologist, who can diagnose your condition and recommend the proper course of treatment. At KENTUCKY EYE INSTITUTE, we stress preventive eye health care for the entire family. When was the last time you had a comprehensive eye examination? Call 606-666-9393 to schedule an appointment. We’re located at 540 Jett Drive, where you can trust your eyes to our experience and expertise. We specialize in “EYE CARE FOR ALL AGES.”

P.S. Because retinal vascular occlusion can be traced to vascular problems, the best prevention is to make lifestyle and dietary changes to protect your blood vessels, including exercise, losing weight, controlling diabetes, and giving up smoking.

A different view

By Betty Crabtree

Do you know of anyone who is not having a time of distress of one kind or another? I don't. But, I'm glad I know One who is faithful to bring good out of whatever situation we may find ourselves in.

Some of you may say, "Well show me how good can come out of my distress!"

Yes, there are really difficult places in life. But, as Romans 8, Verse 35 says, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" (That's a lot of stinking stuff to have to experience.)

Verses 38 and 39 tell us, "For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor death, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Reminds me of a song that says, "nothing, no nothing, nothing is too difficult for God." Amen!

I Corinthians 10:13 is good to remember, "No temptation (trouble, trial, distress) has overtaken you except such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able, but with the temptation will also make the way of escape, that you may be able to bear (endure) it." (Thank you Lord.)

And this is a good reminder too. Philipians 4:6-7, "Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God, (V.7) and the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

Be encouraged; He's got it all under control.

enemies. Probably every young person who has attended Sunday School has heard this story.

In that great 13th Chapter of 1 Corinthians concerning the victory that Jesus has fought and won for us, "But thanks be unto God, which giveth us the victory (over death) through our Lord Jesus Christ." (Verse 57)

This is a very good quote from the noted minister, Henry Ward Beecher, "Victories that are easy are cheap – those only are worth having which come as the result of hard fighting."

VISION

Then again we celebrate those who have had a part in keeping the great American vision. This nation was founded on a vision that would provide freedom and equality for all. It has a vision of government that will provide the very best for its people.

Here is some wisdom from the Book of Proverbs, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Verse 18

VOICES

We also celebrate and thank God for those loud and clear voices that have cried out through the ages for the good and the right. There are those, even today, who would like to silence those voices that speak out for the freedom to enjoy those great principles on which our nation was founded. Thank God for those who have laid down their lives to keep these voices alive and active.

Let us be very careful and cautious concerning who we listen to because, "There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them is without significance." (I Corinthians 14:10)

"The tones of human voices are mightier than strings of brass to move the soul." (Klopstock)

Margaret Austin

Margaret Lenore Fry Austin, born on January 13, 1924 in Asheville, North Carolina to Cecil McCally (Collie) Fry and Gertrude Kincaid Fry. Margaret and her sister Rose Marie were raised in the family home in Beattyville, Kentucky. A National Honor Society student in high school, Margaret attended business school in Lexington, Kentucky and then worked for the FBI in Washington, D.C. during WWII. She returned to Kentucky and then moved with her parents to Miami, where her father was posted with the Navy.

In Miami, Margaret met Charles Robert (Bob) Austin, who had just returned from active duty with the US Army Air Corps in the South Pacific. They were married on June 23, 1945. After Bob's discharge from the Army, they returned to Kentucky and raised three sons, David, Steve, and Mike. Bob was transferred from Lexington, Kentucky to Austin, Texas by IBM in 1970.

Margaret and Bob spent many good years together in Austin. They were big country music fans and especially loved Willie Nelson. For many years after moving to Austin, Margaret grew beautiful African violets and she gave many years of dedicated service to the landscape committee for the Old Town Community HOA. She loved spending time with her family and traveling, fulfilling a life-long dream at age 78 of traveling to Egypt for a month of sightseeing and exploring. Her Christmas card that year was a picture of her riding a camel! She had a love of history, antiques, and all things Kentucky. One of her proudest accomplishments was completing the necessary genealogical research to obtain her mother's membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Margaret was a devout Christian, always actively participating in the life of her church homes, including for the past 28 years Hyde Park Christian in Austin.

Margaret passed away peacefully on the morning of June 18, 2014. She was preceded in death by her husband, Bob, parents Gertrude and Collie Fry, sister Rose Marie Gabbard, and brother-in-law Bobby Gabbard. She is survived by her sons, David and his wife Bonnie and Steve and his wife Cheri of San Diego, California and Mike and his wife Kay of Austin, Texas; eight grandchildren, Diane Austin, Michael Austin, Melissa Austin Johnson, Simon Austin, Aaron Turnbull, Laine Hamilton Young, Ian Hamilton, and Devon Austin Weaver; and eight great-grandchildren.

5th Sunday hymn sing will be at Pine Crest First Church of God, Sunday, June 29

News – Local/regional

elementary school.

In just the last five years (this school year included), enrollment has dropped in the district by 115 students.

State money to school districts is based on a formula called Average Daily Attendance (ADA). That comes from the number of students enrolled and how many are in school daily across the school year.

This funding is known as SEEK (Support Education Excellence in Kentucky).

SEEK funding for Lee County amounted to almost $400,000 this past school year. (The fiscal year just ended June 30, so exact numbers are not known.)

That money is combined with locally produced revenue, which includes general property tax ($372,714), oil tax ($97,000), franchise taxes $51,618, delinquent taxes ($21,000), motor vehicle tax ($153,000) and utility taxes ($325,000). That totals a little over $1 million. (Again, the fiscal year is not yet closed out.)

With enrollment dropping, the amount of money coming from the state has been steadily declining.

At the same time, the school property tax rate of .29 cents per $100 of assessed value is the lowest in the state.

“Our income has been dropping while our expenses have been increasing,” Evans said in an interview Tuesday.

To deal with that, the district has reduced its most expensive cost – salaries. The number of certified employees (teachers, administrators, etc.) has dropped from 84 in 2009-2010 to 73 for this past school year.

Total personnel during that period declined from 164 to 138.

If salaries and benefits averaged $40,000 per individual, that means the district has cut its cost by $1.04 million during that period.

The reduction in staff has caused some programs to suffer. There is no longer a marching band. Teachers who are not experts in some areas are having to take on extra work so physical education and music can be provided in some way at the elementary schools.

Other necessities have been delayed.

All but nine of the district’s school buses have been depreciated out. The number of bus routes has declined from 20 to 15, thus removing five drivers from the pay and insurance rolls.

Only one bus is to be bought for the next school year, though two are needed, including one for special needs students.

Transportation Director Ray Shuler said Tuesday that 11 years ago a bus cost $50,000. They now go for $95,000.

A glance at General Fund expenses shows that salaries make up 80 percent. The General Assembly has mandated a one percent increase for all school employees this school year and a two percent increase next year. A large part of that must come from the district without the state reimbursing it.

State legislators also have increased retirement from .5 percent to three percent over five years. All of the cost has to be borne by the district.

With not all costs in yet from June, other ex-

Storm damage has left this building near the track and bus garage in poor condition. Insurance might pay for these repairs, but other school structures need money that is not available.

penses include water and sewage - $28,915, insurance (all types) - $118,852, electricity - $189,688, and natural gas and propane gas $88,900.

Asked what the district’s greatest need is, Evans said, “To be able to offer the best programs and opportunities for our students.”

Treasurer Sharron Adams said, “We can’t cheat our students versus those from around the state.”

Even with the financial difficulties, Evans says the district is doing a good job.

“Last year we were a high priority growth district,” he said.

To inform the voters about the needs of the district Evans says he wants to meet with all facets of the community.

He knows that many people have an emotional attachment to the Beattyville Elementary building, and that closing it while trying to increase revenues for other needs is difficult.

“We just want to do what is best for our young people,” Evans said.
